This documentary goes to meet these men and women who will tell us about their passion, their fusional attachment to their land, to their profession, the result of which is the production of this liqueur which is today prized by the world's greatest tables as well as the best cellars.

By approaching all the trades related to the production of rum, all those involved in the production chain - farmers - cane cutters - factory workers - distillers - cellar managers - marketing - will tell us their relationship with this emblematic liquor of our regions.

“Guadeloupe Land of Rum and Men” tells the story of men and women that the great tormented and tragic history has brought together on a land -Guadeloupe- in the terrible circumstances, slavery!

From this forced cohabitation was born a liquor - the Rum - which is the result of a know-how transmitted from generation to generation.

This rum which is an allegory of the blood, tears and sweat of the slaves who watered the sugar cane fields, is also the common denominator of the common identity of all Guadeloupeans whatever their origins.

This film is a tribute to these men and women, to this culture, this identity and to their history!
